

About

Who we are

The Journal of Missional Practice is a shared project of TMN and Springdale College/Together in Mission. True to its name, our journal is focused on Practice because we understand that insight will not emerge from church theory and technology. Instead we learn from practitioners who seek to participate with the God who is active in neighbourhoods and communities. Among these practitioners are some who also have the scholarship to help us tease out a theological framing so that we may deepen our understanding.

Submissions are invited, based on criteria that will keep us practice focused. Articles are peer reviewed for careful scholarship. The journal is led by an editorial board and managed by an editorial team. Issues are biannual, Spring and Autumn each year, and are themed.

Editorial Board

Alan Roxburgh and Martin Robinson (lead editors), Graham Cray, David Fitch, Craig Van Gelder, Phil Meadows, Roy Searle, Kyle Small, Bob Stradling, Paul Weston

Other contributors have attended our annual Think Tanks and we are grateful for their input: Michael Binder, Mark Lau Branson John McLaverty, J R Rozko, Fiona Watts, Jamie Wilson.

Editorial Team

Alan Roxburgh	Lead editor
Martin Robinson	Lead editor
Mary Publicover	Managing editor
Sara Jane Walker	Technical editor
Penny Simpkins	Web design